A SPLENDID INVENTION. Harwood's Patent Balance Slide

We were shown vesterday a new invention by Mr. G. D. Harwood of Savannah, whileh we indge will prove one of the most valuable of the century. It is a patent balance slide valve for steam englises, and machinists who have examined it, pronounce it perfect. We cannot describe it better than by copying the following testimental from one who has used it:

calined for it, namely; that it would remove the entire pre-sure of steam off the valve while in aution, so that the "rock shaft" could be as easily moved by hand with a heavy head of steam on.

by hand with a heavy head of steam on, is when the presure is shut off. This is an improvement that has long been required for the slide valve engine, in order to make it complete.
